Umpire Takes Two Games From Locals at Vincennes.

Paducah Club Will Be Here This Week and Three Exciting Contests Are Promised.

Paducah will be here this week for a series of three games with Hopkinsville, commencing tomorrow afternoon, and lovers of fine ball playing will have an opportunity of witnessing three great contests. After the games here with Paducah, the locals will go to Henderson for a series of three games. The games scheduled for this place July 3, 4 and 5 were transferred to Cairo. The first contest resulted in a victory for the Egyptians, the score being 2 to 1. Up to the ninth inning the score stood 1 to 0 in favor of Hopkinsville, but Cairo got two men across the plate in the last half of the ninth, thus winning out.

Paducah lost to Clarksville, at Paducah, Sunday. The score was 1 to 0. The same day Vincennes won from Henderson. Seventeen runs were made, the Indians making 9 and the Hens 8.

In the series of games last week at Vincennes between Hopkinsville and the team of that place, Hopkinsville got one and Vincennes was given two. Shuster umpired, and according to the players, simply robbed the locals. It is claimed that in all close decisions he decided in favor of Vincennes. The score in the first game, played Thursday, was 11 to 5 in favor of the Indians. In the contest Friday Vincennes was also given the game. The score was much closer than the day before, being 2 to 0, but it is said that the umpire used the same tactics against Hopkinsville in all close decisions. The third game of the series was won by Hopkinsville by the score of 5 to 1. This was a pitched battle, in which Bomar, of the local team, had the best of it. He struck out eight men. Hoppe, of the locals, sent a ball over the fence for a home run.

The Cairo team touched up Clarksville's pet pitcher for nineteen hits and twelve runs, at Clarksville, Saturday, while the sang diggers got only three safe drives off of Wagner. The game was too one-sided to be interesting. The score was 12 to 3, which reminds one of the old fashioned "townball" score.

The game at Henderson Saturday between Paducah and Henderson, broke up in a row, and was forfeited to Henderson. In the seventh inning the score stood 2 to 0 in favor of Paducah. Umpire Setely benched Girard for protesting against a decision. Potts objecting was also benched. Catcher Land, of Paducah, swung hard on Setely's jaw from directly behind, knocking him down. The police interfered and arrested Land. Setely gave the game to Henderson by the score of 9 to 0. Land pleaded guilty before a magistrate and was fined $25 and costs. President Thompson fined Land $25 and suspended him indefinitely.

Friday's game at Clarksville proved an uninteresting contest, the score being as follows: Cairo 2, Clarksville 10. The game between Henderson and Paducah, at Henderson Friday, was won by Paducah. The score was 6 to 5. Henderson's errors lost her the game. The game at Henderson Thursday was a very fine one and was won by Paducah, the score being 3 to 2. The Hens did good ball playing, but heavy batting by the Paddies won the contest. At Clarksville Thursday Cairo won from the Tennesseans by the score of 5 to 3.

PARKER STOCK

Is Booming and Tides Is Growing Stronger Every Minute.

The New Yorker's Nomination Practically Assured On Early Ballot.

St. Louis, July 4.—The tide is all toward Judge Parker for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency, and the outlook is that the New York Chief Justice will win early in the action—possibly on the first ballot. The Cleveland talk is waning and it seems doubtful if his name will be presented, the New Jersey delegation having decided to make no aggressive fight in his interest. The anti-Parker men are endeavoring to unite on Gorman as their only hope to defeat the New York candidate, but Senator Gorman is not disposed to enter the fight merely for the purpose of trying to defeat Judge Parker and will not attend the convention. Mr. Bryan will accept the situation he can name the Democratic candidate for Vice President. He was told this much today, providing, however, that he named a strong, conservative man among his friends from a Western state the Democrats would have a chance to carry. Mr. Bryan has a number of such friends in states like Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Colorado and Washington. He is very fond of Senator Turner, of the latter state, and Senator Turner is an able man, and if Bryan will fall in line and say the word the ticket will be Parker and Turner. Otherwise there is no telling who will be the tail to the kite.

THREE FAIRS

And Race Meetings Bilied for the Near Future.

Three great fairs and race meetings will be held, as follows: At Guthrie July 19, five days, Madisonville, July 26, five days, and Evansville, Aug. 1, six days. The meetings will be under the management of Messrs. C. C. Givens, J. R. Rash and J. A. Franceway. With the many new features introduced the fairs promise to be the best ever held in this section. Low rates will be given by railroads and the attendance from this city and county at each meeting, will doubtless be large. See advertisement in this issue for full particulars.

SUES THE CUMBERLAND.

He prays for $100 damages and all proper relief.

The display of fire works at Cerulean last night, in commemoration of the Glorious Fourth, was a gorgeous affair, surpassing all previous efforts, and was witnessed by one of the largest crowds that ever visited the springs. The fall was also a most pleasant affair for those who participated in the dances.

The season at Cerulean is now well under way and the rooms are rapidly filling up. Many from this city were present on the Fourth and a number will remain over all the week.

SHOCKINGLY SUDDEN

Was the Death of J. R. Shelton. Formerly of Crofton.

Mr. Jared R. Shelton, well known in this city, died very suddenly at his home at St. Charles last Friday. Mr. Shelton formerly lived at Crofton, but some months ago moved to St. Charles. He had been a sufferer from dropsy, but his condition was not considered dangerous and his sudden demise was a great shock to his many friends. He was a life-long Democrat, and many times had served as sheriff of the election at Crofton. He is survived by a widow.

SWALLOW IS NAMED

As Nominee of Prohibitionists For Presidency.

Miles Asked That His Name Be Not Presented.—Second Place To Texas Man.

Indianapolis, June 30.—The Prohibition party in national convention nominated Silas A. Swallow of Pennsylvania, for president, and George W. Carroll, of Texas, for vice president.

General Miles put an end to the movement to nominate him for president by sending to John C. Woolley a telegram from New York today asking that his name be not presented. This was considered final and the movement to Swallow was unavailing, no other name being considered.

Four candidates were named for vice president: George W. Carroll of Texas; I. H. Amos, of Oregon; Benjamin F. Parker, of Illinois, and A. U. Coats, of Iowa. When the vote was ordered Wisconsin withdrew the name of Parker and Coats withdrew his name.

The vote resulted: Carroll, 626; Amos, 123; Parker, 1. Carroll was declared the nominee and on motion of Amos the nomination of Carroll was made unanimous. The convention then adjourned.

HIGHER COURT

Appealed to in the Case of "Judge" Bass.

Circuit court closed Friday after an uninteresting session of four weeks. Nearly all of the cases of much importance to the public were continued until the fall term.

GETS DEGREE.

Bachelor of Arts For Helen Keller.

Deaf, Dumb and Blind. Says She Will Devote Her Life to Teaching.

Cambridge, Mass., June 28.—Helen Keller, who has been deaf, dumb and blind since she was eighteen months old, but who has pursued a wide range of studies in spite of her infirmities, was graduated, with the degree of Bachelor of Arts cum laude, from Radcliffe College, the woman's annex of Harvard University, today.

Miss Keller, who was twenty-four years old Monday, has, by reason of her attainments as a student, come to be known as the most wonderful woman in the world. She has acquired an education by the aid of the sense of touch alone. By pressing her finger tips to the mouth of her instructor, Miss Anna Mansfield Sullivan, she is enabled to interpret the spoken words, and by further use of her fingers responds to them.

Will Devote Life to Teaching.

Miss Keller has determined upon her career. She will, she declares, devote her days to the teaching of the blind, the deaf and the dumb. Thoroughly in sympathy with their restrictions and their needs, she is expected to make an ideal instructor.

The young woman is anxious that more books for the blind be printed and that a universal system of raised types be adopted. She urges the publication of a magazine for the blind, of as excellent quality as the best periodicals printed for those who can see.

After a six months' rest Miss Keller will go to the St. Louis Exposition. One day at the fair will be observed as Helen Keller Day, and will be observed by an international congress of superintendents and principals of schools for the blind.

Marvel of Scientific World.

For years the training of this girl and her wonderful struggle toward the goal of knowledge have been the marvel of the medical and scientific world.

Educators and psychologists have found in her a permanent study of the wonders of the human mind, and scarcely a school girl in America is ignorant of her history and achievements.

Helen Keller was born in the town of Tuscumbwa, Ala., June 27, 1880. When only eighteen months old she became ill a fever which left her deaf, dumb and blind.

Up to the time she was eighteen months old, the child was perfectly healthy, and her mother was then aiding her in grappling with the intricacies of the English language. After the illness her education ceased until she was seven years old, when her father, at the suggestion of Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, of Washington, with whom he had communicated, wrote to the Perkins Institution in South Boston in regard to securing a special teacher for his little girl.

Anna Mansfield Sullivan was the teacher selected, and she came to the Keller home in March, 1887. From the date of her arrival the labor from which she has never ceased began.

A Mental Transformation.

Little Helen, shorn of three of her senses, resented all overtures, the training of which she could not understand. Self-willed, impatient, restrained and passionate, she was apparently anything but a promising pupil. Patience, and, ultimately, love, which grew in the heart of the teacher for her helpless charge, finally triumphed.

Indigestion

With its companions, heart burn, flatulence, of the liver, constipation, palpitation of the heart, poor blood, headache and other nervous symptoms, yellow skin, foul tongue, offensive breath and a legion of other ailments, is at once the most widespread and destructive malady among the American people. The Herbine treatment will cure all these troubles (see bottle). Sold by R. C. Hardwick.

If the Advice of This Hopkinsville Citizen is Followed

A woman's back has many aches and pains.

Most times it is the knee, the foot, the backache is really kidney ache.

That's why Dr. Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Many Hopkinsville women know this.

Read what one has to say about it:

Miss L. A. Hecker, of 212 East 13th street says: "It was for a long distance to cure. Not myself in any way, intensely it was acting in my back from which I was a long time a continual sufferer, and I caught cold it seemed to settle in the same region and made me almost miserable. When rising in the morning I felt stiff and sore, and often found it difficult to dress myself. Another symptom of my complaint was a weakness of the kidneys, which annoyed and distressed me beyond words. I doctored but found little if any relief until I tried Doan's Kidney Pills, which had been strongly recommended to me, and which I procured at Thomas & Traher's drug store. They did me a vast amount of good. The pain in my back ceased, the secretions were regulated and my health was improved generally. The pills perform what they promise in every way."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

MUGGINS' SCOOP.

BY J. L. HARBOR.

Muggins came to the Times office in response to a line "ad," stating that a boy was wanted for general work, which included a great many things. Muggins' remark when he was told of the multiplicity of his duties, struck me as being a sensible that I engaged him on the spot.

"I'm hiring on my time to you, sir," he said, "and I don't care what I do so long as you want me to any time in that way."

Acting on this principle Muggins would do anything he was told to do, from the making of a pot of paste to the sweeping out of the whole office. Muggins came from nobody knew where. He had small, wizened features and eyes like a fox. He never looked very tidy, for he was as likely as not to go down into the engine room of the Times office and tumble into a pile of waste and sleep there, instead of going to his own home and his own bed, although I do not know that he had either.

Some one had his first call on "Hello, Muggins," on his first appearance in the Times office, and he was Muggins to us from that time forth, although his name may have been Jones or Montague. If he objected to the nickname he never said so. Slawson, foreman of the composing room, was right when he said:

"If you want to see Muggins' dander rise just abuse that dog of his a little."

This dog was an ill-favored mongrel—a howling, bawling, snarling little cur of no color in particular. The dog was always about two feet from the heels of Muggins. The distance was never lengthened or lessened. When Muggins stopped the dog came to a standstill, and he started up with clock-like precision the instant Muggins moved on. The name of the dog was Pip.

One day Slawson kicked the dog, and Muggins jerked off his shabby little jacket, threw his cap on to the floor, pulled his dirty shirt sleeves up over his thin, bony arms, and screamed out in his shrill, piping voice:

"Don't that dog again, if you dare, Jim Slawson! You do it, and you'll answer for it to me!"

Slawson was a giant in stature and strength. He stared at Muggins for a moment, then he roared with laughter, and said: "Good for you, Muggins! That's the talk! Don't you let any one run over you or Pip, either! If I do it again you just sail in and give the thrashing I deserve."

"I'll do it," said Muggins. "Pip don't bother anyone, and I won't see him abused."

The men of the office laughed so loudly over the incident that Col. Bentley, editor and owner of the paper, came up from his private office below.

"What's the matter up here?" he asked.

"It's a matter of Muggins, sir," said Slawson, with a delighted chuckle.

"He and Pip threaten to clean out the office,"

"Who is Muggins?"

"Why, colonel, it is possible that you have not yet made the acquaintance of the latest addition to the editorial and general composition department of the office? Allow me to present Muggins to you, and this Pip."

"Glad to know you, Muggins," said Mr. Bentley. "You keep straight up here, and put Slawson out if he goes too far."

The editorial and composing rooms of the Times office were on the same floor, a rough board partition separating one department from the other. The door in this partition was now closed, and the printers went back to their work while I, then city editor, began my regular night's work. The Times was a morning paper, and we worked until three or four o'clock in the morning. I had just opened my desk when Tom Riley, one of our best reporters, came in.

"I've not been able to get hold of anything new regarding that Lyster matter," he said. "It is the general impression that Lyster has left the country."

"Don't give it up," I replied. "You may be mistaken, and if the Herald across the way should scoop us in this matter Col. Bentley would never forgive us."

"Mr. Vintrop Forsyte the Lyster was a defector. He had held office of public trust and was president of a bank. His dishonesty had caused many poor people to lose their ill. He had lived in the most extravagant manner on money that did not belong to him. Excitement ran high. Large rewards were offered for his apprehension. The reporters on both the Times and the Herald were at their wits' end for news of the defaulter. The Herald had that moment published an item of trifling interest that we did not have, and Col. Bentley had written me a sharp reprimand about it.

"There isn't a single new item to write about the case," Riley said to me. "Every scrap of real information has been padded out and published over and over again, and yet I suppose that the public and Col. Bentley will expect to find columns about it in the Times to-morrow. Wouldn't I like to find that man Lyster?"

"It would be a great thing for the Times," I said. "And Col. Bentley would show his appreciation in a handsome way."

Riley went on his way, and I began the drudgery of looking over and editing the pile of reporters' copy on my desk. It was Muggins' way to bring the copy of the telegraphic press report from the telegraph office four blocks distant. He made a trip to that office every half hour. If there was nothing else to do between times, he and Pip would curl up on a pile of exchanges in a corner and take a brief nap. They looked forlorn enough lying there at three in the morning. Muggins roused himself when the telegraph editor called out from his desk:

"Here you, Muggins, hustle over to the office and get the rest of that report. Guess you'll get it all this time. Hope so, anyhow." Muggins and Pip went slowly down the stairs. When they came back Riley was with them. "It's no use," said Riley. "Can't scare up a new thing about Lyster."

"This is the last of the telegraphic press, sir," said Muggins. "I'm going now, if you don't mind. I've a but's'n' head ache."

"Go right along," I said. "You do you live, anyhow, Muggins."

"Oh, I hangs out most any place. Just now I got me a 'sweet' of one attic room and a chubby hole in Grabtown. Heard of that so let about, ain't you?"

"Why, that's three miles from here, boy."

"It ain't no less. But there's an all night car as far as Forest avenue, and I can walk the rest of the way in 15 minutes."

"Muggins went on with his usual polite 'Good night, sir,'" and Riley sat down at a table to "scratch off" something about the Lyster affair. An hour passed, Riley and I were alone in the office when Slawson came in for the last page of copy. Riley gave him all he had been able to write, and we were putting on our overcoats to go home when the door opened and Muggins and Pip came in.

The great press in the basement had just started up. A speaking tube ran from the pressroom to the editorial room. Muggins did not speak to us, but went to the tube and whistled shrilly into the mouthpiece:

"What?" said the foreman, in response.

"You stop that press!" said Muggins. Then he turned to us and said, with most interesting excitement: "I've seen Lyster!"

"What?" shrieked Riley.

"I've seen that scoundrel of a Lyster, and I have."

"You don't mean it, boy?"

"Do you reckon I'd come trailin' way in from Grabtown and stop the Times press if I didn't mean it? I've seen Lyster. The policeman on this beat and a hack are at the door below. I've sent back four or five printers I met just leaving. Come on. No time to lose. We'll have to move lively to carry this scoop through before the Herald gets on."

We ran downstairs and jumped into the hack in which the policeman was seated.

"Go to Grabtown by way of Forest avenue and stop there by a big running factory," said Muggins to the driver. "And you get us there as quick as you can."

When we had started Riley said: "Now, tell us all about it, boy. You're absolutely sure you have seen Lyster?"

"Sure. He is hiding in the house of an old Irish woman named Judy Whalen out in Grabtown. It is on the same street and just a little ways from where I have my own

"private apartment and bath." I am coming up in this world, living on the same street with Mr. Vintrop Forsyte the Lyster."

"Go on and tell your story," said Riley. "It will save time and help me to put into shape what I want to write if it's really Lyster."

"Well, it was just this way," Muggins said. "I'd got almost home when I saw the light of the Whalen house and hurry across the street to the letter box under the lamp post and mail a letter. Then he scurried back across the street. He had a little limp in his right leg, and as there's been columns in the papers about that limp of Lyster's I says to myself, says I: 'Maybe that's Lyster, and it was.'"

"How do you know?"

"Well, I reckon it was Lyster from the way Pip acted. Lyster kicked Pip once for no cause. Pip ain't forgot it nor have I. Pip growled and I had to snatch him up and hold him under my overcoat to keep him from growling more. Lyster went back into the alley, jumped over the fence and went into the Whalen house. There was a light in the little back room of the Whalen house. I sneaked up on tip-toe. The window shade hadn't been pulled down over the window by about a half-inch. I peeped under the shade, and there he was!"

"Lyster?"

"For sure. You s'pose I'd clipped away back to the Times office if it had been anyone else?"

"What was Lyster doing?"

"He was sitting by a little table covered with papers, and he had a lot of money before him—money belonging to poor folks he'd robbed. I saw him gather up the money and the papers and put 'em into a valise. Oh, it was Lyster, all right."

"It was Lyster. We left the carriage several blocks from the Whalen house and Muggins guided us to the place. The light was still burning in the little room. Riley and I crept up and saw Lyster as plainly as Muggins had seen him. He was sitting by the little table writing. A door was by the side of the window. The big policeman put his shoulder to the door and it yielded instantly. Lyster gave a little cry of alarm, but he offered no resistance. All that he said was:

"I hope you'll not be hard on old Judy Whalen for letting me stay here. She did it out of gratitude for kindness. My dead wife showed Judy years ago. I'll go with you quietly. It is right that I should pay the penalty for what I have done."

All that Muggins said was: "It will be a great scoop for the Times."

"Was the Times was more than half an hour later that morning, and the press had to run half the forenoon to supply the demand for papers. There was a picture of Muggins in the paper and the whole story was told in glowing terms. When Col. Bentley came to the office that morning his first question was:

"Where is that Muggins boy?"

"He's asleep on a pile of rags down in the engine room," I said.

"It will be the last time he will sleep there," said the colonel. "That boy has got to be looked after. He'll make a good newspaper man. I'll look after him myself."

Muggins was "looked after" and his old friends would not know him if they saw him to-day. He is a young man of great force of character and unusual ability. He is credited to the journals of our day as for Pip, he "had his day," like other dogs, and was decently buried by Muggins, who never transferred his affections to any other dog—Young People.

Chamberlain's Narrow Escape.

Murray Chamberlain, the actor, tells a strange story of a narrowly averted tragedy which might well have changed the recent history of England. Some time ago Mr. Chamberlain was appearing as Zazuille in "The Red Lamp," in Birmingham. When in the final act, he was trying to stab the hero of the play, Zazuille's knife slipped from his hand, and, flying over the footlights, buried itself in the partition which divided the orchestra from the stalls. Had the weapon not been thus intercepted it must have found a target in the body of Mr. Chamberlain, who was seated immediately in the line of sight, and within two feet of the arrested knife.—The Hour Glass.

A CURIOUS SECT

Believe — Rigid Separation from the World is Enforced.

VISIT TO PROSPEROUS AMANA COMMUNITY OF IOWA.

Their Simplicity of Life and Peculiar Beliefs — Rigid Separation from the World is Enforced.

A simple, honest, devout people known as inspirations are to be found in Iowa. At a most picturesque and productive spot on the Iowa river, not many miles from Iowa City, five villages of these people thrive under the careful leadership of the 80 elders of the community. Everything is held in common. There is one store in each village, from which all supplies for the community are made or raised there. There are common kitchens at which all eat the simple wholesome fare provided they value each other as brother and sister, and practice the Christian graces. While the home is as private as anywhere in America, there is a great interest which draws them together as one great family. They believe that religion should be of the heart and not in the outward show, and wear the simple apparel of old Germany, from which country the sect came in 1842. Driven out by persecution, they came to America under the leadership of Elder Peter, George Weber, William Noe and Gottlieb Ackerman. They first went to Buffalo and soon secured a part of the reservation vacated by the Seneca

THE POWER CANAL IN AMANA.

Indian, where they built their first village and called it Ebenezer. More than 800 followers came over in the course of the next year or two, and being annoyed by the crowding of population, all about them, they decided to move. The site of their present location was selected by the sagacious leaders, and the community gradually moved there, and in 1845 the first village was incorporated and named Amana, which means "Remain true."

But the special matter of interest at this time is the peculiarities of their belief, or their simple habits, but the fact that the younger generations growing up here are becoming more and more restive under the restraints thrown around them. They feel the throbs of the twentieth century life, and want to mingle with it. This is causing older men great concern, and the older and devoted members of the community are anxiously watching for the coming of a prophet who shall reveal to them a solution of the problem, which confronts them.

The last prophet was a woman—and by the way real riches for women and men. She exercised the right of suffrage in the elections for community and church officers—by the name of Barbara Heinman, a poor ignorant girl born in Lower Ohio, in 1795. She was one of the first to be inspired after the death of Jonathan Rock, the founder of the faith. She came to this country with the little Rock, and continued to prophesy until her death in 1883. Since then the community has been waiting for the coming of another prophet.

Compulsory education prevails in the community, and as it is the unwritten rule that he who will not work shall not eat. All musical instruments are excluded, and God is worshipped with the voice only. The only food which does not believe in oaths, and do not offer prayers for the dead, who are laid away without mourning. They practice fire-washing and hold love feasts. Marriage is a sacred relationship, and when a young man has decided to make a certain maiden his wife, he is required to go to one of the other villages of the community, and remain without communication with the object of his affections for a whole year to test the genuineness of his love. Celibacy, however, is the highest ideal of life.

Not So Much.

Mark Twain was in the habit of having his tonorial requirements attended to by a certain hotel's barber. On one occasion, while peacefully having his little white hair trimmed, his attention was arrested by a very diminutive boy in buttoned coat, who was standing in front of him trying to attract his attention and present him with a card. With a twinkle in his eye, but looking profoundly solemn, Mark inquired:

"Who are you?"

GAVEL FOR CONVENTION.

Nashville Man Takes One From Wood of Fifty-two States and Territories.

D. H. Fairbanks, 436 North Summer street, has made a gavel which contains wood from fifty-two states and territories of the United States. Hawaii and Porto Rico are the only parts of the nation that are not represented. Thirty-two different kinds of wood go to make up the gavel, which will be given the Democratic National Convention next Wednesday for use during its sessions, with the understanding that it is to become the property of the nominee.

Mr. Fairbanks is the man who made the union flag staff when the state troops left for the Spanish-American war. In the gavel he has just completed and which is now on exhibition in Steiff's window, he has put some of the pieces of wood left over from that, together with several bits of historic splinters. One piece of poplar comes from the John C. Calhoun farm in South Carolina. A slice of the cotton wood under which Pontiac, the noted Indian chief of early Michigan, fought his last battle forms a part, but the most interesting portions of the gavel are the two ends. These are made from a bedstead which was in the original Hermitage when it burned. The wood is cherry and Mr. Fairbanks has its history well authenticated.

Leigh Thompson will be the bearer of the gavel to St. Louis and will present it to the convention.—Nashville News.

PRIMARY METHOD.

Of Setting Democratic Nomination For Congress.

Shelbyville, Ky. June 2.—The fifth day of the convention has brought many delegates back to Shelbyville. Almost half of the delegates from upper counties left for their home Thursday and Friday. All kinds of rumors were afloat. Jerry Sullivan, of Richmond was spoken of as a dark horse.

The Garrard delegation said they would vote for Helm if Moore was dropped. Col. Moore said he was here to stay. Judge Roach called to convention to order at ten o'clock and ordered the 17th ballot, which showed the candidate holding their strength. After 180 ballots and been taken E. B. Hoover of Jessamine county, offered the following resolution:

We the delegates of the Eighth congressional district in convention assembled have for five days faithfully attempted to discharge the duty of nominating a candidate for congress and taking 180 ballots without making any change whatever in the situation and now believing it to be the interest of the Democracy of the district to refer the matter of said nomination back to the voters of the district, be it

Resolved, That this convention request the regular Democratic organization of this district to order a primary election for the purpose of making nomination for Congress in said district."

The resolution was unanimously adopted. The convention adjourned with good feeling prevailing among the delegates.

Aim Higher.

"When I say good bye to you this evening," said Mr. Slowman, "do you think it would be proper for me to place one reverent kiss upon your fair hand?"

"Well," she replied, coquettishly, "I would consider it decidedly out of place."—Philadelphia Press.

Review of Reviews.

The magazine that is indispensable in a Presidential year, the American Monthly Review of Reviews, is living up to its well earned reputation. The issue for July is strong in political articles of wide and timely interest. "Theodore Roosevelt as a Presidential Candidate" is considered in graphic, trenchant style, yet with dignity as befits the subjects, by one of the delegates to the Chicago convention. The article is profusely illustrated with pictures of the President and his family. Then there is the major part of the speech of the Hon. Elihu Root, of New York, temporary chairman of the convention, presenting the record of the Republican party from 1901 to 1904. In "The Progress of the World," Dr. Albert Shaw reviews the political history of the past four years in the United States, discusses men and policies, and "rounds up" the situation in his own convincing and informing style, bringing the reader up to the Democratic Convention at St. Louis—which will be handled in the August number of the Review.

'What Shall We Eat?'

Every day the same old question. What shall we eat for breakfast, for dinner? Assailed with monotonous regularity the patient housewife who seeks to provide good living for the family in agreeable variety at a moderate cost. There is a daily department in The Chicago Record-Herald which is intended to answer this question satisfactorily every day in the year. It is entitled "Meals for a Day," and provides menus for the three meals every day, with the necessary recipes. These menus and recipes are carefully selected by The Record-Herald's household editor, and cash prizes are awarded to the best that are received. Housewives everywhere are invited to participate in the competition. For full particulars see the "Meals for a Day" in The Chicago Record-Herald.

Show an Increase.

The gross earnings for the first two weeks of June of all the railroads in the United States reported for that period, show an increase of nearly five per cent compared with the earnings for the corresponding period of June, 1903.

PIPE MUSIC.

Company Proposes to Furnish it to Families

Like Water or Gas, And Sufferers From Insomnia May be Lulled to Sleep.

To supply music like gas or water is a new project about to be put on foot. The general plan is to establish a central station in every large city.

There will be no such thing as bad music when the utility of the machine is fully employed. At the central station the best artists only will be employed, and the music will be varied from Wagner to ragtime, to suit the tastes and whims of the public.

The machine is operated by making and breaking electric circuits. Nothing is heard from the machine when this is done, as the music is brought out by the translating device. The machine originates the music. The translating device may be an ornamental piece of any appearance.

To meet the desires of those who may want to study the personnel of the artist or artists, the generating station will be a public hall, with translating devices. The music will be supplied by measured service.

It is planned to have six classes of selections. All will be sent out over a pair of wires. The subscriber who gets this service will receive all the music.

Another method will be to have six wires, so that the subscribers to this may select just what they want to hear, and still another will serve theaters and halls, giving full orchestral effects. For the first, the rate will be at the start $50 a year. The second will be about $100 a year, and the third will be much more expensive as it will displace an entire orchestra.

There will be a device for raising or lowering the volume of sound, so that it can be heard only a few feet or will fill a whole building. For public playgrounds, hospitals, factories, hotels, restaurants, as well as for homes even of the poor classes, the world's best music, by the greatest musicians, will be within the reach of all.

It is contemplated even to have slumber music, so that the sufferer from insomnia may be lulled to sleep. Any one who can afford to rent or own a piano or organ can afford this service. It can be transmitted long distances—across the continent if desired.

Family Reunion.

Mr. D. A. Tandy had a reunion of his children yesterday before breaking up his home on Seventh street. Those present were: Mr. Harry G. Tandy, of Frankfort; Mr. and Mrs. Everett Tandy, Shelbyville, Tenn.; Mrs. Harry Cruse, Ft. Smith, Ark.; Miss Sue Tandy, St. Louis; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Threlkeld, of Salem, Ky.; and Mr. T. T. Tandy, of this city. The other son, Jeap Tandy, a soldier in the Philippines. Mr. Tandy will rent his house and go with his daughter, Mrs. Threlkeld, for a visit, and later live with his son Everett.

The county from which the smallest amount of taxes is due is Menifee, being $3,002.53.

Granted a Divorce.

PATRIOTIC TEA DRINKING.
The China and Japan Products Are Quoted by the British in Ceylon.

"Careful and intelligent efforts of the British government to have its people consume the tea grown on one of its possessions have had a remarkable effect," said William Sidney Welling, who represents a large tea firm with headquarters at London, says the Milwaukee Sentinel. "The people have taken to the idea of using British products, and the tea growing industry as a result in Ceylon is beginning to pick up. Ceylon was the last of the three eastern countries to engage in the industry. China started, then Japan followed, and for a few years these two countries had a monopoly of the business, even in the United Kingdom."

"At the last moment the inhabitants of Ceylon began to grow tea on a small scale, but the business flourished so that average devoted to the raising of this staple increased enormously. And the beauty of the whole matter was the fact that the Ceylonians managed their export trade so well that 92 per cent of their product was sold in the British possessions, on the tea of China and Japan."

"During the last ten years the amount of Indian tea consumed by the people of England alone has increased more than 70 per cent. Considering the fact that Japan and China had a firm hold on the tea market when the Ceylonians started out, this is quite remarkable. It shows that the British people are willing to support each other, although they may be of different hue and may be thousands of miles apart."

STORY OF ADMIRAL DEWEY.
Sick Boy in Brooklyn Wanted to See Him, But Had to Be Disappointed.

"The souvenirs which have pleased me most," said Admiral Dewey to a friend, relates Woman's Home Companion, "have been those which the little folks have sent me. The admiration of the children is unalloyed and genuine, and their gifts are so original."

The admiral's correspondence with his little admirers would make an interesting story of itself, and it would be one that would show his big, kind heart as probably nothing else could. At the time of the Manila victory there was a young lad in Brooklyn, who for many months had been flat on his back with that most cruel of afflictions, hip disease. From the Battle of Manila he read every word he could find about "Commodore" Dewey, and he kept a close tab on his movements. It was a crushing disappointment to the little fellow that he would not be able to see his hero when he came to Brooklyn a few months after his return from the far east. He felt it so keenly, that without telling him that he had done so, his father wrote Admiral Dewey, explaining the case, and asking whether, if he should bring a carriage, the admiral could spare the time to ride over to his home. In the programme which had been arranged for him there was not a moment at his disposal, but with his own hand the admiral wrote a letter expressing his regret and inclosing an autograph picture for the boy.

Courting a Girl in Spain.
Courtship in Spain is conducted on principles that might almost be described as unique. The Spanish girl of any attractions is almost at all times attended by a young man who is known as her novio, and who has the privilege of acquiring her on her walks, although by a singular anomaly no formal engagement exists. So long as this state of things continues the young lady has to be loyal and obedient to her gallant. But he may cease his attentions at any time and openly transfer his attentions to some other lady. Although the advantages of such a custom are all on the side of the male, very few Spanish girls would care to be without a novio, however fickle—London Globe.

Jews in Jerusalem.

in ten... and may have the opportunity to judge her taste for indoor sports. The nine thousand have hundred and ninety-nine others must remain shut in to a sort of perpetual slavery, from which there is no escape. It is these shut-in women who suffer most from womanly diseases, and who, when they are cured and made strong by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, are eager to point the way of health to some other sufferer.

"I do not wonder that you call medicine the 'Favorite Prescription' after the help it has been to me," writes Miss Bertha Elbert, Treasurer 'Young People's Society' of Christian Endeavor, First Presbyterian Church, residing at 1600 East 10th Street, Kansas City, Mo. "Was so weak and sick I could hardly raise my head, having constant headache and headache. Two bottles of Dr. Pierce's medicine made me a well woman, and since then it has been my 'Favorite Prescription,' too. Have advised a number of my friends who were suffering to use it, and have been gratified that it has helped all without exception."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It is unequalled as a tonic for run-down, worn-out women.

Weak and sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

WHY KNOX QUIT.

Trusts Needed His Services In the Senate.

Roosevelt a Party to the Deal Made in Pennsylvania With the Trusts.

(Special Correspondent of the KENTUCKIAN.)

Washington, D. C., June 30.—The political gossip in Washington are busy just now with comment on the barefaced connection of the present Republican administration with the trusts of the country. The latest phase of the complete surrender of the Republican administration to the trusts of the country is the transfer of Attorney-General Knox, long known as the attorney for the trusts more than as Attorney-General of the United States, from his position as Attorney-General to the United States Senate.

In accordance with this decision on their part the bosses of the trusts, including the head of the railroad trust, the coal trust, the steel trust and the oil trust, got together at the home of the president of the Pennsylvania Railroad and proceeded to outline their program to the governor of the state of Pennsylvania and tell him to dance to their music. After their choice had fallen on the little sycophantic Knox, he was called and told that he had been chosen to succeed Matthew Stanley Quay. Before he would accept it, however, he had to call up President Roosevelt and ask him about the matter. He did this by long distance telephone and he got the President's endorsement and his sanction and his blessing together, undoubtedly, of his assurance that he would back up all the trusts and what little Knox did for them as the Senator from Pennsylvania. If the people of the country want any further assurance that the Republican party is being run in the interests of the predatory wealth and the trusts in restraint of trade of this nation, then they are here to convince. Is it possible for a man of sanity who has the best interests of his family at heart to continue to vote the Republican ticket after this exhibition of trucking, bootlicking and sycophancy to the plutocracy which every day is grinding the common people of the country into the earth with its financial heel. If they can then they are beyond any argument for their own good and there is no use in making any.

As a further evidence that the President and his administration has sold out body and breeches to the rich people of the Nation and the trusts, he has lately entertained at the White House some of the wealthiest men of the country. He has been in the White House for nearly three years, but never before has he thought it worth while to invite such men as Geo. Gould to dine with him. He had him here the other day for over two hours in close conference after dinner. Mr. Gould is only one of many of the railroad and other magnates of the country the President has been in close confab with of late. It can only mean one thing and that is that the President has concluded that it is time to call in the men who furnish the snows of war in a political campaign and surrender to them by assuring them that they have nothing to fear from him and that he will not in any way interfere with their graft. If it does not mean that what does it mean? If the people want to retain that kind of a man in the White House they will have the opportunity presented to them this fall.

The condition today in the state of Colorado is causing comment from lawmakers of the country who are visiting the National Capitol. It also is the occasion for grave concern. They realize that the situation out there is no longer an ordinary contest between labor and capital, or between union and non-union workers. It is government by special interests for special interests carried to its logical conclusion that is on exhibition. A lawless mob, supported by the militia, is giving the mining camps the kind of "law and order" that the mining companies desire—the same mining companies which have vetoed the passage of an eight hour law made mandatory by a constitutional amendment adopted by an overwhelming majority of the people of the state.

All citizens who value American institutions are dismayed. They see government by corporate corruption yielding its natural fruit in unbridled disorder and military tyranny. The lesson of Colorado, full of sinister warning, is as broad as the union. It concerns every man who cares for the preservation of the legal rights of the individual, and it concerns every man who cares for the maintenance of respect for property.

More than that, the trusts which procure or prevent legislation by pull and bottle strike at the security of everybody else's property. In that case will the people continue to uphold a trust-loving and a trust protecting administration? Think it over.

In this connection, the most salutary sign of dissent from the last question asked above is the volume of letters coming into the headquarters of the Democratic Congressional Committee here. Not long after headquarters was established Chairman Cowherd wrote about two thousand letters to leading Democrats throughout the country, asking certain questions for the information of himself and coworkers in the campaign. Hundreds of replies have been received and the unanimity with which the people who have written of changed conditions, disaffection in Republican ranks, a growing feeling that we will win this year and the determination of the men who have been battling for years for the party of the people to wipe off the face of the earth the party of trusts and the plutocrats, the fighting attitude of the men who control things in their sections of the country, have powerfully "held up" the spirits of the men who will steer the Democratic ship in the coming campaign. Let every man who believes in the party of the people put on his fighting toga, for victory is in the air. CHAS. A. EDWARDS.

Scared to Death.

Dr. Francis W. McNamara, of Chicago, says: "Millions of people are made wretched every year or perhaps every week, by feeling that they have heart disease. They have a pain in that region, and their own diagnosis is sufficient to convince them of the malady. As a matter of truth, there is seldom any pain from heart disease. The trouble is indigestion only. The stomach, lying just under the heart, is distended to a painful degree by gases, and, crowding toward the heart, makes the pain seem to be in that organ." This opinion simply confirms the claim of Dr. W. B. Caldwell, who originated the formula of Syrup Pepsin, the guaranteed cure for indigestion and constipation. All druggists sell it, but be sure to ask for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

A Retraction.

In the May number of the Ladies' Home Journal we published the article entitled "The Patent-Medicine Curse," an analysis of "Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription," in which that preparation was represented as containing, among other ingredients, tincture of digitalis, tincture of opium, and alcohol. Immediately upon publication of the number a suit for damages was instituted by the R. V. Pierce Medical Company, of Buffalo, New York, against the Curtis Publishing Company, based upon the claim that some of the three ingredients were contained in the medicine.

Upon the filing of the suit, we, of course, immediately looked into the published analysis. It appears that this particular analysis had been made, it made at all, fully twenty-five years ago. We, thereupon, employed three leading chemists in different cities to make an analysis of the preparation from bottles bought in the open market. These analyses, one and all, now show us conclusively that not a single one of the ingredients mentioned in the analysis quoted—that is, either digitalis, opium or alcohol—was contained in the bottles analyzed. We then, the president of this company and the writer, personally visited the R. V. Pierce Medical Company, at Buffalo, and were there convinced that the officers of the company were absolutely truthful in their claim that not one of these injurious ingredients were contained in "Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription." Naturally, since the analysis we printed has been proven erroneous, the deductions made in connection with this preparation were unwarranted and unfounded.

Under these circumstances it is now perfectly plain to us that the magazine was unintentionally misled, but nevertheless absolutely misled in making the original statement, and we hereby, of our own volition, make this unqualified acknowledgment of our mistake to the R. V. Pierce Medical Company and to our readers.

The mistake was honestly made, but it was a mistake.—From July number Ladies' Home Journal.

SMOTH'S COLD CREAM.

A Preparation Manufactured in Hopkinsville Proving a Great Seller.

There is manufactured in this city a patent medicine recently placed on the market that is destined to find its way into all parts of the country.

The patentee is Mr. H. F. Smoth, a young man who came here a year or so ago from Cincinnati and began the manufacture in a small way of "Smoth's Cold Cream." He advertised his preparation liberally, and soon built up a strong local demand for it, and has widened his territory until his capacity has been increased and his laboratory has been moved to 409 Elm street, where he is preparing the Cold Cream in wholesale quantities, but finds his orders coming in faster than he can fill them. The preparation is put up in a small jar, and is said to be one of the finest things ever put on the market for sunburns, chapped skins and similar troubles. Mr. Smoth is operating with limited capital, putting all his earnings into his business, but he finds himself unable to keep up with the ever increasing demand, and there is a fine opening for a strong stock company to take up the preparation and push it as a remedy that is destined to stand on its merits.

Mr. Smoth is now busy preparing thousands of sample jars and expects to begin canvassing in a few days, increasing his capacity as rapidly as his means will allow. He is a stirring, energetic young man, thoroughly confident of the ultimate success of his preparation as a world-wide seller. He has been greatly encouraged by the assistance that has been given him here and has determined to make this his permanent headquarters.

Runaway Team.

A team hitched to one of Forbes' big transfer wagons ran off on Tenth street early yesterday morning. They headed at breakneck speed toward the bluff at the I. C. railroad, upon the very brink of which they were brought to a stop by the frantic efforts of a colored yardman at work under the bluff who yelled and struck at them with a pole. The bluff is fifteen feet high where the street terminates.

London, July 4.—More than 700 emigrants bound from Copenhagen for New York on the Scandinavian-American steamer Norge have been drowned. Twenty-seven survivors were landed at Grimby, fifteen miles southeast of Hull, last night. The Norge struck on a rock last Tuesday in the North Atlantic, about 200 miles off the coast of Scotland, and foundered. There was a heavy sea and most of the boats were smashed. Only two of the boats succeeded in getting away, and these were picked up by a Grimby vessel.

Louisville, Kentucky, July 4.—Lee Sutter, a member of the Louisville Board of Public Safety, was accidentally shot and killed at the Dream Palace Fishing Camp, a few miles above Louisville, Sunday. The boy admits he fired the shot, but says he had no idea that it was going in the direction of the tent occupied by Mr. Sutter.
